

FdA Degree in Football Coaching and Management

MITSKILLS IN ASSOCIATION WITH MARJON UNIVERSITY

Unlock your potential and shape the future of football by becoming a coach.

Through our coaching and development course, you'll not only master the game but also inspire the next generation of players.

Join us and lead with passion, knowledge, and purpose.

Great football coaching is not just about teaching skills, but about cultivating discipline, passion, and resilience in every player.

Development isn't measured by victories alone, but by the growth of character and the ability to rise after every fall.

About this course

MIT Skills and Plymouth Marjon University have joined forces to offer students a unique pathway into the highly sought after football industry.

Through this course, students will gain essential knowledge, skills and insights across coach development, player growth, and the broader impact of football on society.

This is your chance to build a rewarding career, elevate the game, and make a lasting difference both on and off the field.

About this course

The Football Coaching and Management course partners with select football clubs and foundations to offer students practical experience and professional insights into football coaching and development.

Through these collaborations, students gain exposure to both community-based initiatives and elite performance programmes, bridging the gap between theory and practical.

This hands-on learning approach equips students with the skills and knowledge to pursue a wide range of careers in the football industry.

What will I study?

The course emphasises two key areas: coaching and development within football.

Coaching: focused modules will delve into the holistic education and development of both coaches and players, exploring various methods to enhance performance and growth within the sport.

Development: focused modules will address broader issues, including the governance and management of football, player pathways, and the inclusion of underrepresented groups, encouraging students to find ways to make football more inclusive and accessible.
